YEAR AHEAD

Forecast for the Collective

Welcome to the new decade! The Twenties may have just begun, but 2020 already brings some of the most important astrological events of the entire decade. Yes, the decade. The Twenties will usher a profound societal shift—by the end, we will not recognize our lives as we currently know it. 2020 is the year that cosmically catapults us into this new cycle. It's really that big.

What makes 2020 so monumental is that it's dominated by three astrological giants:

Saturn

About Building society.
Brings Wakeup calls & reality checks.

Pluto

About Finding truth.
Brings Intense, core-level transformation.

Jupiter

About Finding meaning.
Brings Growth, expansion & hope for the future.

Think of these three as characters on a TV show. All year long, the characters will be having conversations with one another, meeting and interacting in ways that play out the plot of our collective storyline. The script of this TV show will focus on themes of:

As a serious and responsible Earth sign, Capricorn is all about the societal structures we build on this Earth—think governments, corporations, institutions, and banks. He also rules authority figures, leaders, fathers, and men. Capricorn symbolizes responsibility—how we take care of others and take accountability for our actions. Fail to do so, and there are natural consequences.

With this script and this cast of planetary players, we can already see that 2020 will involve some kind of major wakeup call to our current power structures. Saturn says time's up—time to inspect our institutions and check for cracks in the foundation. Pluto gets involved to redistribute the power, taking it away from those who unfairly have it and giving it to those traditionally powerless. And Jupiter steps in to beam his magnanimous rays of wisdom and optimism for all those envisioning a new future.

This is the first and last time in our lives we'll see such a lineup of energies in the sign of authority and governments. 2020 marks the end of a tempestuous storm of Capricorn weather that's been blowing into our collective since 2008. Before we can see where we're headed, we must understand where we're coming from:

Since Pluto first entered Capricorn in 2008, we've witnessed a tremendous shift in the global balance of power.

Power has been given to those traditionally disempowered...

- Barack Obama becoming America's first black president.
- Non-royals Kate Middleton and Meghan Markle being accepted into the royal family.
- Same-sex marriage being legalized in America.

Blatant corruption has been revealed....

- Major banks falling to their knees in the global financial crisis of 2008.
- #MeToo exposing the global patriarchy.

Faith in institutions have collapsed...

- Mass protests gaining storm, like France's populist yellow vests and Hong Kong's uprising against authoritarian governments.

But some parts of the ruling class have become stronger—the shadow side of Capricorn:

- No top Wall Street executive getting charged for a crime in the 2008 financial crisis.
- Corporate influence in elections exploding with the 2011 U.S. Supreme Court case, Citizens United.
- Authoritarian-style leadership spreading around the world.

The ground is seriously shaking—and in 2020, the structural destabilization of the last decade will come to a head. This corresponds with a year when America will head to the polls for another extremely polarizing presidential election. An election where the balance of power will shift, with Millennials and Gen Z starting to outnumber Baby Boomers and the Silent Generation for the first time.

What will unfold? Read on for an analysis of the transformation that Saturn, Pluto, and Jupiter will bring.

JANUARY

Rage Against the Machine

Aspect: Saturn conjuncting Pluto

Sign: Capricorn

Peak: January 12, 2020

Frequency: Every ~37 years

2020 explodes onto the scene as Saturn and Pluto begin the year with a heavy conversation about the current powers that be. Today's world is made up of hierarchies—those pyramid-shaped structures with one person at the top and many at the bottom. We can see this in every part of our lives, from corporations to governments to countries. But are these structures serving we the people, or themselves?

Stern Saturn is all about wakeup calls. In Capricorn, he brings a magnifying glass to those in power, inspecting to see if they pass the test of responsibility. Have our leaders been acting dutifully towards the collective? Or have they been negligent and corrupt, doing whatever it takes to maintain power? (the shadow side of Capricorn). Whatever your karma, Saturn brings the consequences—the distinct feeling of reaping what you sowed.

Pluto gets involved to dredge up the dark underbelly of our ruling class. Who deserves to be at the top and who's gotten there unfairly? He unearths truth and helps us see who's been abusive—even downright evil—in their use of power.

The structures coming under the microscope are those started since the last time Saturn and Pluto met face-to-face, about 37 years ago. That was 1980-1984—the period when Margaret Atwood began writing The Handmaid's Tale in Germany while it was still divided by the Berlin Wall (a very Capricorn-like structure). So starting January 2020, we may begin to see headlines, takedowns, or exposés on things like:

- The idea that “greed is good”, popularized by the 1987 movie Wall Street.
- Trickle-down economics, signed by President Reagan with the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981.
- Leaders ruling with an iron first, such as Margaret Thatcher, the former British prime minister once known as “The Iron Lady”.
- Corporate negligence of the environment (Capricorn is an Earth sign after all).

Karma is coming back for all those who have ruled irresponsibly. But they won't come down easily. All planets have a higher and lower side—as Saturn reveals irresponsible uses of power, he can also make others try to dominate even harder. As Pluto reveals darkness and abuse, he can also make others more ruthless. So while we will start to see this rebalancing of power begin to take shape in January, most of 2020 will still be about the consolidation of the current system—meaning more rules, more control, more restrictions, and more ruthless power grabs. This will last in some form until the next Saturn-Pluto meeting in 2053.

The upside of this constricting time is that Pluto will help us see the truth of this gross imbalance, bringing motivation to rage against the machine. We can expect to see this rage become mainstream in 2020, with global, Hong Kong-style protests gaining serious momentum by the end of the year. What we have to look forward to is the destroying of old systems. What we need to be aware of is how the current powers won't let go so easily. Who gets to have the power? This is the main question that we, as a collective, will start addressing in January 2020.

APRIL-NOVEMBER

Growing Beyond Limitations

Aspect: Jupiter conjuncting Pluto

Sign: Capricorn

Peak: April 4, June 30, November 12

Frequency: Every ~12 years

In order to change, we need to be optimistic and dream big!

We also need to release what's holding us back

In the midst of a serious and rather somber Capricorn year, there's hope—Jupiter, planet of growth and opportunity, dominates the year astrologically. He'll be meeting Pluto three times between April to November of 2020, holding a long conversation about how we can grow collectively into the future.

Tearing stuff down is important....but how do we want to rebuild? Larger-than-life Jupiter is the wise sage of the zodiac, helping us see the bigger picture and find meaning in what truly matters. All year long, he will bring much-needed clarity to help us differentiate between the good and bad systems. Then it's time to get creative, as Jupiter spreads his infectious optimism to inspire new visions for how the world can be. With Pluto joining forces to help us excavate and release our self-sabotaging fears, we will all feel empowered to expand beyond what we thought was even possible.

In Capricorn, Jupiter is about building structures that set us free, rather than constrain. He helps us grow concretely in a structured way that's built to last. In 2020, we will likely see the birth of groups and organizations that will become the new power players of the future. But Jupiter is also in a weakened state in Capricorn—Jupiter likes to play it fast and loose, while Capricorn prefers things steady and regulated. Thus, progress towards the future may seem slow or even downright blocked throughout the year. But with Pluto starting to empower the powerless, we should see the balance shifting as we get deeper into 2020 and beyond.

The Jupiter-ruled institutions of society could also face a Plutonian transformation—colleges, churches, and publishers, and other groups focused on higher thought.

The meeting of Jupiter and Pluto signifies a time of great wealth—Pluto ruling wealth and Jupiter ruling excess. Within the context of the greater societal restructuring, we can expect to see the start of a major redistribution of wealth in 2020. Jupiter will make it easier for those traditionally kept outside the system to gain wealth. But this can also be a time of huge cash grabs by those trying to maintain power. Watch out for snake-oil salesmen, as get-rich-quick schemes will likely trickle down to the collective in 2020.

DECEMBER-BEYOND

Rebuilding the Community

Aspect: Saturn conjuncting Jupiter

Sign: Aquarius

Peak: December 21, 2020

Frequency: Every ~20 years

Finally, progress and solutions....and none too late! In December 2020, Jupiter and Saturn will exit Capricorn and meet in Aquarius, breaking a decades-long fever in Capricorn that's only been intensifying since 2017. Expect to feel major release both collectively and personally as these two planetary kings leave the heavy, grounded Earth sign of Capricorn for the cerebral Air sign of Aquarius.

Saturn actually rules Capricorn and Aquarius, and we can consider them to represent two sides of the same coin. Both are serious and dutiful, but Capricorn is conservative and responsible for building up the Earth. Aquarius is progressive and responsible for taking care of the group. Capricorn is systems while Aquarius is independence. With Saturn and Jupiter entering Aquarius, it will feel as though we are symbolically becoming independent from the systems that have bound us on this Earth.

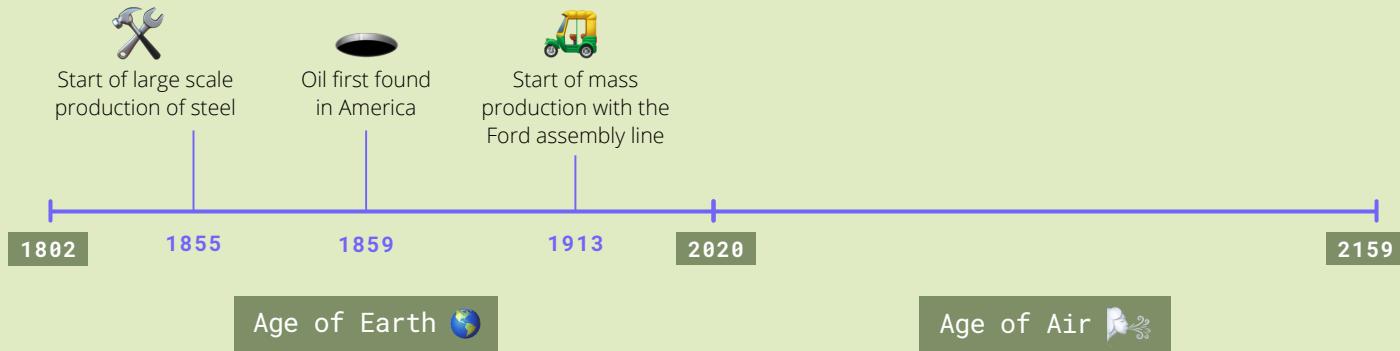

Think of our current governments and corporations as "dad", and the collective us as his children. Dad thinks he knows what's best and imposes a lot of rules on us. 2020 symbolizes the point when the children are finally mature enough to realize, we just don't need dad anymore. We can live happy and fulfilled lives without the pyramid-shaped hierarchies of the past.

From December 2020 on, Saturn (structures) and Jupiter (growth) will be working to rebuild societal structures in a way that looks much more Aquarian. Aquarius rules flat, decentralized networks like the internet (in fact, it rules the internet!). Our schools, workplaces, businesses, and governments will start to rebuild in this way, infusing with the Aquarian ideals of community and inclusion. Self-sufficiency as a lifestyle and becoming independent from the system is likely to go mainstream. Aquarius also represents the outsider's perspective—those who have been previously marginalized from the centers of power. These are the people who will emerge to lead huge cultural revolutions into the group-minded future.

It's important to capture the gravity of just how important this moment is. Jupiter meets with Saturn every 20 years so it doesn't seem like such a big deal, but 2020 marks the first time they'll meet in an Air sign in over 200 years! The last 200 years were dominated by Earth signs and now that chapter is coming to an end.

What happened in the last 200 years? The Industrial Revolution! The ideology of using heavy machinery to harness (and plunder) the Earth, in order to power consumption and drive economic growth. That way of living is what we're leaving behind as we enter the next 140 years of Air rule.

But what will replace it? Air represents the receiving and sharing of information. We can actually look back to 1980 to get a glimpse of what's to come—that year, Jupiter and Saturn met briefly in the Air sign of Libra before dipping back into Earth signs. What followed was the Internet Revolution—the start of connectivity, personal computers, and living our lives on the internet.

In 2020, Saturn and Jupiter will pick up where they left off in 1980 and take things even further. Thus, the new age may bring something of a Connection Revolution—a time when there will be huge breakthroughs in the ways we communicate and share knowledge. Ideas and information will become the new currency of the world, rather than heavy, Earth-mined products such as oil and gold. The internet may undergo a revolution, or even be left behind for a better and faster system. There may be creative new apps that help us share resources, reducing consumption and waste. And we're likely to see major technological advances in transportation, with new possibilities emerging in space travel—perhaps even time travel.

The future is really here. But keep in mind: although we're entering the new Age of Air, this is still a time of Capricorn consolidation. We will feel this in 2020 as it becomes more and more obvious that the world is dividing into two strands—between those who cling to system and those who start going off on their own. But from December on, the future lies in Aquarius—idealistic, inclusive and humanitarian.

Peering further ahead, we can see that Pluto will also enter Aquarius in 2023, bringing his immense, tectonic forces to empower the people. Last time Pluto was in this sign was 1777—the height of the American Revolution. According to astrology, we are truly witnessing the birth of a new era. 2020 is only just the beginning!

YEAR AHEAD

Personal Forecast

2020 is a powerful year for the collective—one that kickstarts a long-term shift from the hierarchical Capricorn structures of the past to the flat and decentralized Aquarian networks of the future.

But what does this year of heavy Capricorn weather mean for you?

Capricorn rules structures of all kinds—our workplaces, our schools, our daily routine, our plans, even our bones and teeth! So 2020 calls upon each of us to closely examine the structural integrity of our lives—where are we building a strong foundation and where are we standing on shaky ground? We all know in the back of our minds that one area of life where we're not being quite as responsible as we should be. Perhaps we're on our phones far too much, or we keep putting off that dentist appointment. Whatever it is, this year will help us take back control and rebuild.

Capricorn also rules the 10th House in astrology. A “house” in technical terms refers to a specific area of life—anything from relationships, career, family, and more. The 10th House is commonly known as the house of career—what we do to establish a name for ourselves professionally. Take it a step further, and we can see the core essence of this house is about your higher calling in life—what we're so driven to do that we must do it publicly. In 2020, we are being asked to deeply reexamine our higher calling.

Is your current job, current major, or current lifestyle helping you get to where you truly want to be? Or is it just to climb the hierarchy?

2020 is driving us all to live out our highest potential. It's like we're in a cosmic pressure cooker, forced to withstand intense—sometimes unpleasant—conditions in order to transform from rocks to diamonds. Along with our higher calling, we each have a specific area of life that will become the supporting theme of our 2020. This is the area where we'll encounter challenges and breakthroughs all year—where we're forced to let go of something in order to help us move forward to where we truly need to be.

Your new maxim for 2020: take charge. Embrace Capricorn's best qualities to be consistent and aboveboard in everything you do. If you feel stuck or in a rut, know that 2020 will bring the breakthrough moment. Along with that, set boundaries. You don't need to do everything yourself—part of maturity is knowing when to let go and say no. Embrace the self-starter in you, the one who wants to make your mark—and go for it!

Higher Calling & Life Passion

Your supporting theme for 2020

The horoscopes in this guide were designed to be read for your Rising sign (also commonly referred to as the Ascendant). If you don't know your Rising, you can also use your Sun sign!

ARIES

Your career and higher calling in life. Aries is getting a double dose of career magic this year, making it that much more important for you to follow your passion—no questions asked! Aries especially can't function well if they're not marching to the beat of their own drum. 2020 is all about reexamining your ambition and whether that aligns with your true passions. You're famous for being one of the most ambitious signs of the zodiac, but is that creative power being funneled towards what truly makes you happy? This is also a time when your reputation may come into the crosshairs, especially if you know you've been avoiding responsibility (gulp). Whatever you do this year is becoming public, so double and triple check before you hit "send".

TAURUS

How you elevate yourself by embracing what takes you out of your comfort zone. Get ready for a serious change in perspective, because this is the year that zooms out your mindset from a small-town lens to a birds-eye view. You'll be going on a galactic journey of self-growth all year, whether that be through travel and immersing yourself in foreign cultures, study and expanding your mind, volunteering to tap into your spirituality, or self-care to find emotional solid ground. Your mantra for 2020: more is more—time to have more fun, try more things, and take more risks. Live boldly and growth will follow. Just make sure your journey doesn't take you too far from your daily responsibilities.

GEMINI

Your business and finances. 2020 is calling on you to get your #boss hat on and take ownership of how you earn and spend money. It's time for a serious up-leveling of your entrepreneurial skills. Use this year to become more scrappy and resourceful, and make sure not to neglect any outstanding debt. On a personal note, 2020 brings opportunity for some serious emotional healing. Be aware that deep, repressed wounds and secrets may be bubbling up to the surface this year. It's as if the universe is excavating all the skeletons in your closet, forcing you to face—and finally release—what's been holding you back for too long. Embrace transformation and a richer life will follow.

Your supporting theme for 2020*CANCER

Your close, 1-on-1 relationships, personal and professional, such as friends, boyfriends, spouses, and business partners. It's time to embrace twin magic and find your own #iconicduo relationship. Working together is how you'll get ahead this year! Start by doing a deep dive into your relationships—which are helping you reach higher, and which are taking more than they give? Cancers especially can tend to lose themselves too much in service of others. If someone has been unsupportive or crossing too many boundaries, it's time to let them go. But trimming the emotional baggage is what creates space to have fun—you're the life of the party all year, blessed with the Midas touch in socializing and bringing others together.

LEO

Your daily routine and the things you do on a regular basis, such as 1) your day-to-day workload (from classes, jobs, etc), 2) your health and overall lifestyle, 3) your pets and how you take care of them, and 4) how you volunteer to serve others. Time to embrace your inner Marie Kondo and simplify! This year is all about restructuring your routine in a way that helps you have more fun and creative energy. Use this year to assess which parts of your day make you feel calm and in control, and which parts leave you feeling like a hot mess. Where can you reorganize or streamline to help get back your sanity? Be especially mindful to take a look at your health—we don't want any structural flaws there!

VIRGO

How you express creativity and have fun, including: 1) your hobbies, interests, and sports, 2) dating and romance, and 3) creating things with your personal stamp, like starting a blog, designing merch, or even having children! 2020 is the time to get serious about creating what you wish existed in the world. We each have a totally unique perspective on life, and this year asks you to express it! Use 2020 to discover what you do just for you—not your classmates, Instagram, or any other societal pressure. Your romantic life is also in play—are you asking for and getting what you need? Focus on the relationships that actually make you feel good, not the ones that leave you in an endless stalking hole.

LIBRA

Your family and where you live—your home, apartment, and country. This year, home is where the heart is. Just like Finding Nemo, you'll be going on a year-long journey to find those who make you feel truly loved and safe—whether that be your real family or your heart family. Libras especially can't function well without the love and support of others. Just make sure the journey doesn't leave you avoiding responsibilities at home. This is also the year to focus on finding emotional solid ground—which areas of life just make you feel “off”, that pit-in-the-stomach feeling? 2020 will help restructure your life in a way that builds long-term emotional security for the future.

Your supporting theme for 2020*SCORPIO

Social networking, communicating, and sharing ideas. 2020 is the year to get out the microphone—you have an important message and the universe is calling on you to share it! All year long, you'll find opportunities to connect with others and be heard. Use this time to reexamine the way you communicate—have you been getting your point across effectively, or getting tangled in a web of misunderstandings and crossed wires? Perhaps you've been gossiping a little too much, or not speaking up enough. 2020 may also bring a focus on your siblings, whether they be by blood or by heart. Embrace any opportunity to reconnect and your relationship will undergo a transformation.

SAGITTARIUS

Your values and goals. This year is all about donning your #adulting hat to get serious about what you want to create for yourself in the future. It's no use charging ahead if you don't even know where you're going! Take this time to do a deep dive into what you truly value in life. What is your personal philosophy and how do you want to express it? With a solid values system comes the ability to create long-term goals that feel worthy and authentic. One thing we all value is money and possessions, but how do those align with your moral compass? It may be time to purge what no longer serves us. This is also a year to deeply reexamine how you value yourself. Take time to reflect on your inner strength, building a reservoir of confidence that helps you dream bigger in life.

CAPRICORN

Your core identity: your character, sense of self, and what drives you. It's your year Capricorn! 2020 will be life-changing for everyone, but Capricorns especially will undergo a fundamental transformation of who they are. You're starting a brand new cycle in astrological terms—a chance to wipe the slate clean and begin anew. This is the year to reinvent yourself! Take time to assess which parts of your identity you want to leave behind in the 2010s, whether that be your current job, current major, or even current style. Then, it's time to bust out the mood boards and get creative on where you want to be by years-end. This is also a year when you'll be asked to step forward as a leader. Embrace responsibility and self-reliance, and you'll find yourself scaling even greater heights.

AQUARIUS

Your subconscious and spirituality. Time to don your scuba gear and take a deeeep dive into your mystical inner world. 2020 calls on you to turn inward and explore new depths of your own psyche. We all know how we act on the outside, but do we really understand who we are on the inside? This year, your best opportunities for growth come from taking time alone to reconnect to yourself. You're like a spiritual antenna, able to download messages from other side. Make space for daily reflection and let the messages flooow. You may find that subconscious fears or limiting beliefs start bubbling up to the surface, forcing you to confront them. What would your life look like if you let go of those fears? How are you holding yourself back from your own goals and desires?

Your supporting theme for 2020PISCES

Your friend groups and networks, personal & professional: clubs, teams, associations, and even Facebook groups. It's time to find your tribe! All year long, you'll be going on a quest to find—or create—the groups that align with your own quirky interests. Working together is your ticket to success this year! Start by taking a closer look at who you surround yourself with—are they helping you reach higher, or just preying upon your sensitive Piscean nature? Taking out the baggage is what creates space for the ones who'll help you move luminescently into the future. This is also a time to reexamine your hopes and dreams. What is your dream vision for the future and how can your group help you get there?

Finding Cracks in the Foundation

January is action-packed as planetary heavyweights Saturn and Pluto come together to meet, kickstarting a conversation about which of our systems actually deserves to be here and which should be torn down. They begin to show us what's broken in our society.

We will also start to feel these tectonic forces on a personal level, as the things that were already shaky in our lives start to internally break down. The pressure is on to shed whatever's holding us back. Thus, this month is all about carefully inspecting your life to find the cracks—before they turn into craters.

This is a great time to:

- Do an internal review of where you currently stand. Which area of your life is running smoothly and which doesn't seem to be working out the way you'd like?
- Assess your current responsibilities and burdens. Where are you hitting the mark and where do you need to become more accountable? Where are you overburdening yourself with extra duties that can be delegated to others?
- Re-prioritize what's important. Sometimes, we live life on autopilot and lose sight of what actually matters. Take back control—what makes you feel joyful and truly excited about life, and what's just a part of the grind?
- Envision the future. If you could reinvent yourself in any way you'd like, what would that look like? Try a creative writing exercise where you freehand whatever comes to mind, focusing on how that new way of being would make you feel, rather than what you would obtain materialistically.

Shaking up the Status Quo

If January is the equivalent of a deeply personal, internal implosion, March is like a violently spewing external explosion. The pressure is kicked up as Mars (planet of action and war) enters the picture, colliding with Jupiter and Pluto to shake up the rocky areas of our lives even more. It's like an earthquake rolls into town, bringing down whatever's weak and reducing it to rubble. Sounds terrible, but Mars only does this to force us to take action!

The very next day, Saturn enters Aquarius for the first time, staying until July when it turns back into Capricorn. Saturn brings planning and organization to the sign of personal authenticity, helping us lay down the blueprints for who we want to become in the new Age of Air. We will start to get serious about discovering our true authentic voice. This is the best time of the whole year to take bold action as Jupiter and Pluto meets for the first time just two weeks later, empowering us all to let go of our self-sabotaging fears and limitations in order to dream big. Use this time to:

- Find your voice. Jot down 3-5 words that feel true to who you are at the core (e.g. "animal lover"), and 3-5 things you want to achieve this year (e.g. "volunteer at the animal shelter").
- Reflect on your inner strength. What are some narratives you've been telling yourself on why you can't achieve a certain goal? How can you gain confidence that you'll be successful if you follow your passion?
- Release what's holding you back. Write down any persistent fears or limiting beliefs (e.g. "I can't apply for that job"). What still applies and what has outlived its usefulness?
- Draw up plans and routines that help you take concrete action towards your goals. This could be signing up for an online class, starting a 30 day challenge, or just setting aside time every day to do what you love.

Pay attention to the things you discover now as they are just a taste of what's to come in December when Saturn finally reenters Aquarius, to stay until 2023.

Embracing Curiosity, Reevaluating Our Values

Another reason why 2020 is so significant? Venus and Mars will both go retrograde this year, the two planets in our solar system that retrograde (go backwards) the least. Venus starts things off by going retrograde in Gemini from May 13 to June 25.

During a retrograde, we are asked to reevaluate and rethink everything falling under that planet's domain. So for example, under a Mercury Retrograde, we are asked to reconsider communications and renegotiate contracts because those fall under Mercury's domain. With Venus, we are asked to reevaluate what we love and value.

How do your current values & desires align with who you want to become?
Are you latching onto things that no longer serve you?

In Gemini, there's an emphasis placed on valuing curiosity and open-mindedness. Letting go of outdated ways of thinking can help make way for creativity and flashes of insight. This message is doubled as the North Node of the Moon—ruler of our future destiny—also enters Gemini in May, staying until 2022. Venus and the North Node infuse us with playfulness and a child-like curiosity, helping us have fun in creating our dream vision for the future.

But of course, there's also the South Node of the Moon—ruler of our past lives and karma. The North Node, like the North Star, helps illuminate where we need to go. The South Node shows what we need to release in order to get there. During this time, we all have an area of life that we need to value and follow, as well as an area of life that we need to let go:

Reevaluating Our Actions and Motivations

Now that Venus has helped us reevaluate our values, Mars goes retrograde to help us reevaluate our plans, motivations, and how we take action. We have an idea of where we want to go but how exactly are we supposed to get there?

Mars is normally like a wild burning fire—it moves quickly and acts decisively, whether it be the best course to take or not. In retrograde, Mars is more like a slow burning ember—it waffles before acting, second-guessing each step. The frustrating part of this is you may encounter circumstances out of your control that delay or downright block your plans, forcing you to slow down or take a detour. The upside of this is that it gives us all a break to refocus on our true passions and desires. Do you actually want to follow through with these plans, or are you just going along with the wishes of others? Take the time now to regroup and restrategize, and you'll be able to move that much more quickly once Mars gets out of retrograde in November.

What's challenging this time is that all month long, Mars will be having a tense argument with Saturn, Pluto, and Jupiter in Capricorn. This is a seriously heavyweight group of planets! Be mindful of the fact that challenges will be coming your way—but as long as we follow the example of Mars Retrograde to reflect, rather than react, we'll discover an inner fire that pushes us into the age of Aquarius and beyond.

Please read for your Rising sign (also known as the Ascendant). If you don't know your Rising, you can also use your Sun sign!

Moving into the New Future

The new age is finally here! We're bound to feel collective release as Jupiter and Saturn finally meet in an Air sign for the first time in 200 years. Tension has been building all year between the death of the old paradigm and birth of the new, and, on this December Solstice, we finally get our first true glimpses of the new.

The caterpillar is becoming the butterfly! All year long, we reflected on our higher calling, threw out our blockers, reevaluated our values, and restategized our plans. We tried on new personas that seemed to better align with our soul purpose—perhaps they fit, perhaps they still didn't feel quite right, as if only a mask. Rest assured, they will start to feel right in December as Jupiter and Saturn move into Aquarius, the sign of embracing our true individuality.

In 2021, we will find our lives speeding up even more as it becomes easier and easier to let go of the old paradigm. Get ready for liftoff! Use the last remaining days of 2020 for some extra cozy self-care, refilling your emotional tanks to help you move at warp speed into the new future.

- Assess how far you've come. What was your biggest challenge in 2020 and what did you learn from it? How about your biggest blessing?
- Reflect on your self-growth. What is the most important thing you learned about yourself this year?
- Reevaluate what makes you happy. What is the one thing you want to do more of in 2021? The one thing you want to do less of?
- Express gratitude. How did the universe help you get closer to your higher calling in 2020?
- Give yourself a major high five 🎉 You've survived one of the most astrologically intense years ever and gotten to exactly where you need to be in this moment. I thank you for going on this journey with me and can't wait to see you next year!

About

Hi, I'm Cho. My full name in Korean means "green"—perfect for a Taurus Sun born in the full bloom of May 🌸. My parents had no idea Taurus rules emeralds and the color green!

I was raised in a traditional Korean family where my mom and grandma could tell the future from their dreams. I don't have their gift (yet), but I like to think it's manifesting in me through astrology—the idea that time is circular, not linear, and that predicting the future is as simple as looking back to the past.

True to my Aquarius Rising, I'm a huge space nerd and obsessed with all things cosmic—spacetime, relativity, extraterrestrials, and of course, astrology! 🌟 As a software engineer by day and stargazer by night, I live and breathe the sign of inventiveness and technological creativity.

As an astrologer, I apply the same principles of the past-present-future connection to understand that your birth chart is not just a personality profile, but a roadmap of where your soul has been and where it wants to go. Understanding your soul's past can inform why you were born with this chart, this life, and this set of circumstances—and how your soul is using the present as a stepping stone towards its future evolution.

In 2020, I'm following Capricorn's lead and taking a huge leap to start my own astrology business. This yearly forecast is my first commitment towards that. Of course, breaking off on your own is always scary and nerve-wracking—but it's made much easier seeing in my chart how this is my soul path. I can't wait to share the process with you.
